LICENSE DEFINITIONS:

Perpetual: One-time purchase followed by annual maintenance payments.

Token: Allow for flexible access to any installed Telelogic product (that supports token licensing) on a license server. When users access a product, a pre-assigned number of tokens are removed from the token pool. Tokens are available only as floating usage and term-based pricing.

Node-Locked: A Node Locked license is tied to one specific machine, enabling the software to be used by any one user at a time on that machine.

Per User: A Per User license is tied to one specific user ID. It may be used by that specific user on any machine networked to the license server.

Single Site Floating: A Single Site license allows for use of the Software within a radius of 64 km (40 miles), including all remote user access, from within the city and state in which Licensee is located.

Floating: A Floating license enables the software to be accessed by any one user at a time on any machine with network access to the license server machine.

Multi Site Floating: A Multi Site license allows for use of the Software, including all remote user access, within the country or state (applicable in USA, Canada) in which Licensee is located.

Continental: A Continental license allows for use of the software, including all remote user access, within the continent (North America, South America, Europe, Africa, Asia, Australia) in which Licensee is located.

Global: A Global license allows for use of the Software, including all remote user access, throughout the world.
